About Hypres Equipment

Hypres Equipment manufactures American-Made high-pressure breathing-air compressors, Class 2 Containments, air management panels, and DOT & ASME air storage cylinders. This product line serves the fire, HAZMAT, industrial, military and SCUBA markets. Hypres Equipment currently sells its products through a nationwide distributor network.

In 1964, Marilyn & Noel Hansen founded High Pressure Engineering. Noel Hansen was an underwater diver in the Navy for many years. Following Noel's duty in the Navy he found there was a lack of high pressure breathing air systems in the United States. Noel began purchasing military compressors and converting them to high-pressure breathing-air compressors. His ingenuity made High Pressure Engineering one of the leading pioneers in the industry. In the early 80's High Pressure Engineering became what it is known as today - Hypres Equipment.

In April of 1996 Hypres began packaging the North American Compressor (NACC) blocks within its compressor applications. Marcia & Ron Peeler, present owners of Hypres, have an interest in NACC. North American out-sources the manufacturing of the components to CNC companies that specialize in that service and NACC assembles the high-pressure compressor blocks. These pumps are based on a proven design and have been improved for true continuous duty. NACC is located in the same city as Hypres Equipment allowing for efficient delivery and availability for parts.

In 2000, the 1st single cylinder Class 2 Containment in the industry was developed and built. It was also tested by a licensed engineering testing company to receive certification to conform to National Fire Protection Agency (NFPA) 1901 standards. Hypres Equipment also built the first 90° door opening for Class 2 Containments in the industry. Our fill station line is comprised of air, oxygen, and air/oxygen applications. Oxygen Containments are also available to be integrated into our "All in One" HYPRES compressor series. These applications are available in mobile or stationary designs.

Hypres Equipment is proud to produce American made products, and is fully committed to producing quality products and providing quality service to our customers. Hypres Equipment is devoted to doing what we say. This concept is the backbone of Hypres Equipment.
